In the cold, animals can be attracted to the warmth of your car. Always check before you drive away.

A college student drove his ratty, raggedy old car into the mechanic's shop, needing some repair advice for his jalopy.

The mechanic looked at it for a couple of minutes and said, "What you really need is the radiator cap solution."

"Oh," said the student, trying not to sound too confused, "Do you mean the radiator cap isn't holding enough pressure?"

"That's part of the problem," the mechanic said. "You need to lift the radiator cap and drive another car under it. Then you can replace the radiator cap, and it should solve your problem."

Not So Hot in Sierra Vista

"When the weather turns cold, it's nice to crank up the furnace and enjoy the heat. But if your home's furnace doesn't work, it's not too comfortable. Same goes with your vehicle. When the heater's not working, things can get miserable. It could also signal some major problems, which we'll discuss later.

A vehicle's heating system is fairly complicated. It's made up of several parts, including a blower motor/fan, a heater core and some mechanical and electrical components. In basic terms, a vehicle's engine warms up coolant which is then sent to the heater core (which is kind of like a small radiator) behind the dash. That blower motor sends cold air through the heater core which heats up the air. Voila! Heat."

Winter

Crossword

DOWN

- 1 This holiday season, ask your guests not to share their _____ with your pets. Too much human food can cause health problems.
- 3 Anchor your Christmas _____ securely to prevent it from tipping over and causing possible injury to your pets.
- 4 For pets who have a regular supply of this outside, check it often to make sure it does not freeze over.
- 7 This shiny holiday decoration may make your tree look pretty, but it can cause serious injuries to your pets if they try to eat it.
- 8 The holidays generate a lot of garbage! Be sure to _____ or reuse wrapping paper, gift boxes, tissue paper, gift bags, bows and ribbons.
- 9 Do not feed _____ to your pets. They can splinter and cause serious injury if ingested.
- 13 Do not allow you pets to _____ the water underneath your tree. It may contain fertilizers and bacteria which can make them sick.
- 14 Before you get in your car this winter, you should do this to the hood. Cats and wild animals may have crawled underneath, attracted by the heat from the car's engine.

ACROSS

- 2 This sweet-tasting car fluid attracts cats and dogs, but it is highly toxic. Luckily, there is a pet-friendly (propylene glycol-based) alternative.
- 5 When it is icy outside, wipe or wash your dog's feet before he comes inside. The _____ used to melt ice can irritate his paws and make him sick if he licks it.
- 6 You may get a kiss under this hanging plant, but beware: it is poisonous to pets!
- 10 This is the best place for your pets to be during the winter. (Hint: Not outdoors!)
- 11 Never share this sweet treat with your pets! It contains a compound called theobromine, which is poisonous to animals.
- 12 Ask your family to consider buying SPCA _____ meats, cheeses or eggs this holiday season. Yummy!
- 15 With its bright red berries, this plant is a favourite holiday decoration. Watch out, though - it is poisonous to pets!
- 16 If your pet shows any signs of illness during the holiday season, call your _____.
- 17 The toxicity of this plant has been somewhat exaggerated. However, it can still cause stomach upset in your pets if they eat it, so keep it out of reach.
